CWRUPDATE

SUMMER 2015

Breaking the Water Jug Together

Last year I visited Los Limones, a very remote community in the mountains of Honduras. We heard the desperate pleas for help to provide access to water. A village elder, "We have slaughtered a lot of chickens to serve people who come here to hear our story, but nothing has come of it." Time after time they were told that their village is too remote and therefore it was too costly to provide access to water.

This April, I returned to Los Limones to celebrate the completion of their water system. Although most of the funding came through CWR and our partner Water 1st, all of the labor was carried out by the community themselves. Every household now has a sink with clean running water and a latrine.

During the ceremony a woman got up on the stage. She tossed her clay water jug proclaiming, "I never have to carry water again!" I now have a piece of that broken jug in my office to remind me of this special occasion when the whole community gathered to give thanks to God for the precious gift of water.

Relief and Recovery Continues...

The devastation after the earthquake in Nepal is hard to fathom and the monsoon season is looming and threatening more loss and destruction. Your gifts to Nepal relief are providing life-saving assistance including temporary shelter, water and sanitation, food, and medical care. CWR will be working in India and Nepal following this disaster for months and possibly for years to come. Continue to give for Nepal earthquake relief and recovery online or by mailing a gift to CWR.
